

English 4353: Writing Projects, Fiction

Chitra Divakaruni

Tues. 2:30 to 5:30

English 4353

In this course students will focus on writing short stories and analyzing them. Class time will be spent in examining published work and discussing its strengths and weaknesses and using it as a model for student assignments; in analyzing student work (both short prompt-based assignments and several complete short stories); and in studying craft and style techniques.

Please note: This is an advanced-level course for Creative Writing majors only, which means you should have taken the prerequisite courses already.
