

How Science Became Popular: Epistemic Governance and Scientific Citizenship in the Twentieth Century

Friday, March 25

9-9.15 am: Welcome address

9.15-11.00 am: Panel 1: The Public and the Institutions of Scientific Knowledge Production: Antagonistic Relations

Chair: Samantha De Leon (U of Houston)

Discussant: Anastasia Rogova (U of Houston)

Lyubomir Pozharliev (Leibniz Institute for Regional Geography)-Vaccination Campaigns in the People's Republic of Bulgaria (1945-55): Elites, Coercion, and Mistrust.

Alexandra Arkhipova (Wilson Center, DC)-"I Am Throwing Away My Shot:" Vaccine Hesitancy and Resistance in the Former Soviet Union.

Mary Neuberger (UT Austin)-Imagining Baba Vanga: A Bulgarian Seer, Suggestology, and the Outer Limits of Scientific Knowledge.

11:15 am - 1 pm: Panel 2: The Public and the Institutions of Scientific Knowledge Production: Cooperative Relations

Chair: Isabella Rumbough (U of Houston)

Discussant: Andrew Jewett (U of Houston)

Zachary Barr (Chicago)-Indeterminism and ISOTYPE: Popular Science in Interwar Austria.

Yulia Chernyavskaya (Rutgers)-'We Were Making Better People': All-Union

'Knowledge' Society Activists and the Late-Soviet Ideal of a Well-Rounded Person.

Dmitrii Blyshko (U of Houston)-Trespassing the Borders of Science: Archaeologist Anatoly Zhuravlev and His Move from Academia to Alternative Knowledge.

1-2.30 pm: Lunch break

2.30-4.15 pm: Panel 3: Professionalization of Sciences in Empire

Chair: Allison Anderson (U of Houston)

Discussant: Jimmy Schafer (U of Houston)

Said Sultan Al-Hashmi (U of Houston)-Science and the Paradox of Colonialism: Arabian Peninsula, 1920-1940.

Jack Seitz (Tennessee Wesleyan U)-Agricultural Science Popularization & Environmental and Social Change on the Kazakh Steppe in Late Imperial Russia.

John Lisle (Louisiana Tech)-Public Relations and the American Science Attache Program.

5-7 pm: Keynote Lecture

Nasser Zakariya (UC Berkeley)-

Anthroperiphery and the Public Representation of Science

Location: Agnes Arnold Hall 210

Saturday, March 26

9.15-11 am: Panel 4: Science and Human Ontology

Chair: Nancy Katz (U of Houston)

Discussant: Nandini Bhattacharya (U of Houston)

Gabriela Radulescu (Technical University of Berlin)-Extraterrestrial Intelligence's Regime of Epistemic Governance During the Cold War.

Alexei Kojevnikov (U of British Columbia)-When Space-Time Met World Revolution.

Erica Augenstein (U of Houston)-Technological State-building in Diaspora: Palestinian Labor in the Arab Gulf.

11:15 am- 1 pm: Panel 5: Science as Pedagogy

Chair: Nella Sakic (U of Houston)

Discussant: Michael Gordin (Princeton)

Michael Coates (Kennan Institute, DC)-Encyclopedic Knowledge and Post-War Technological Society in the Soviet Union and United States.

Jonathan MacDonald (Brown)-Teaching Emotional Self-Control to the Adolescent Citizen.

Valeria Muts (Yale)-Capturing Time: Social Conservatism and Popular Science in Early Twentieth-Century Russia.

1-2.30 pm: Lunch break.

2.30-4.15 pm: Panel 6: The Cold War and Better Governance

Chair: Christian Moore (U of Houston)

Discussant: Pratik Chakrabarti (U of Houston)

Sanchia deSouza (U of Toronto)-Homogenizing Consent for Modern Milk: Dairy Science and Public Communication in Twentieth-Century Bombay.

Doubravka Olsakova (Czech Academy of Sciences)-Popularizing Societal Taboos: Disabled persons, Children, and Popularization of Psychology and Pedagogy in the 1970s and 1980s. Elena Trubina (UNC Chapel Hill)-School Teaching after the Cold War in the Urals: Myth, Knowledge, and Ideology.

4.30-5 pm: Closing Discussion.

Program Committee:

Alexey Golubev, Chair

Nandini Bhattacharya

Michael Gordin

Anastasia Rogova

Abdel Razzaq Takriti

David Womble

Sponsors: UH Department of History, Department of English, NEH Cullen Chair in History & Medicine | UT Austin Center for Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies

