

CLINICAL ASSISTANT PROFESSOR, Non-Tenure-Track
DEPARTMENT OF COMMUNICATION SCIENCES &
DISORDERS UNIVERSITY OF HOUSTON

The Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders, a CAA-accredited program in Speech-Language Pathology (SLP) at the University of Houston, seeks applicants for a twelve-month, non-tenure-track clinical faculty position, effective Fall 2021. Clinical faculty are full members of the department faculty and are expected to demonstrate excellence in the areas of clinical practice and education. The department supports faculty through opportunities for clinical research and professional development, and promotes engagement regionally, nationally, and internationally. Minimum qualifications include: earned doctorate in Speech-Language Pathology or related field, ASHA clinical certification and current eligibility for Texas state licensing as clinical SLP, three years direct clinical experience in SLP, documented completion of ASHA continuing education requirement for supervision. Responsibilities include providing SLP services and clinical education in a university speech-language-hearing clinic and teaching a variety of undergraduate courses in communication sciences & disorders.

The University of Houston, a Carnegie designated Tier One public research university, is centrally located in the vibrant international city of Houston, Texas. The fourth largest city in the nation, Houston is a dynamic cultural and business center. The University of Houston is located with convenient access to downtown and within four miles of the nationally and internationally recognized Texas Medical Center, with more than 30 medical facilities affording numerous opportunities for collaboration. Each year we educate over 46,000 students and are one of the most culturally diverse campuses in the U.S. The Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders (www.class.uh.edu/comd) values diversity and strives to be a welcoming, inclusive center for research, education, and clinical service. We have approximately 300 undergraduate and 80 graduate students. Degrees offered include: B.A. and B.S. degrees in Communication Sciences and Disorders, an M.A. degree in Speech-Language Pathology, and a Ph.D. in Communication Sciences and Disorders. Our on-campus clinic provides services to the greater Houston area that represent diverse racial/ethnic backgrounds, ages, disorders and etiologies.

Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled. Applications must include: letter of interest with stated qualifications for the position, clinical education/teaching philosophy and a summary of clinical experience and clinical education/supervision, curriculum vitae, and the names of three references. Copies of representative scholarly work and summaries of supervisory and/or teaching evaluations are also welcome. Transcripts from all educational institutions and written letters of recommendation will be requested from final candidates. Questions regarding the application or position may be forwarded to Dr. Stephanie Daniels at skdaniel@central.uh.edu For more information and to submit the online application please go to: https://uhs.taleo.net/careersection/ex2_uhf/jobdetail.ftl?job=FAC001577&tz=GMT-05%3A00&tzname=America%2FChicago

The University of Houston is an Equal Opportunity Affirmative Action employer. Minorities, women, veterans, and persons with disability are encouraged to apply.