

Dear Subscriber:

It's that time again! Your Houston History subscription is up for renewal.

Our upcoming issue celebrates innovative thinkers who have impacted our community in multiple fields. They include John Lienhard who began the NPR program Engines of Our Ingenuity that explores “the ways inventive minds work”; Nicolás Kanellos who founded Art Público Press, the nation’s oldest and largest publisher of Latino-oriented books; Marguerite Ross Barnett, the University of Houston’s first woman and first African American president; Nancy Sims and Katy Caldwell who have impacted politics, education, and healthcare; The Art Guys, Michael Galbreth and Jack Massing, who created art that engages viewers in new ways; the Charity Guild of Catholic Women, which has contributed to charities helping children for a hundred years; and the Greens Bayou Coalition that works to improve the quality of life through flood mitigation, expanding greenspace, and economic development.
