Letter from the Dean

Salutations and congratulations!

Graduation and commencement. Our shared language underscores that the step you are taking is toward the future, not an end but a beginning; our graduation ritual of “walking” highlights the fact that you are now on a new journey in a new world. Yet Faulkner famously suggests that “the past is never dead. It’s not even past,” and another great teacher observed about our companions and the things we read, say, write, and do together, that “nothing is ever lost.”

That teacher, R.J. Kaufmann, believed that to understand a person in midlife, you need to know what they were doing and what was going on in the world when they were between the ages of 18 and 24. Looking forward to the person you are becoming, I invite you to consider what you have been doing over the last four or five years, and your answer cannot be, “getting my degree”!

Instead, putting aside those audited and approved transcripts, take stock of those moments that you will remember and savor in a decade or two. Doing “Dinner with a Prof” and finding out that they’re human, too; looking out from the battlements of a Spanish castle; scuba diving in the Galapagos archipelago; breaking through to that epiphany for a Human Sit paper; taking your first oral exam and killing it (or vowing to kill it next time!); discovering your inner Bleacher Creature; presenting your poster at Undergraduate Research Day; making the transition from mentee to mentor; speaking with an eloquence you didn’t know you had when meeting a famous author or foreign ambassador in the Honors Commons.

Often at the end of a graduation banquet, I’ll quote the desideratum from one of Flannery O’Connor’s favorite prayers: “May we not be as strangers in the province of joy.” I hope that over the past four or five years you have not been a stranger to joy and will not be a stranger to us in the years to come, that your honors education has prepared you for deep satisfactions in your professional lives, and beyond your professional lives.

This week we are commencing, so let us begin. And let us continue.

Warm regards,

William Monroe
