

Dinah Godwin is an assistant professor of Developmental Pediatrics with Baylor College of Medicine in Houston, TX and provides clinical social work services at Texas Children's Meyer Center for Developmental Pediatrics. Dinah is a licensed clinical social worker with over 20 years of experience in direct clinical care with families of children with developmental disabilities and special health care needs. Dinah is a field instructor with the Bachelor of Social Work (BSW) program at the University of Houston-Clear Lake (UHCL). She has consistently supported quality supervision and educational mentoring to UHCL students for multiple years. Dinah has a passion for teaching at all levels about family-centered care, community resources and services, and effective advocacy strategies at the local, state, and national levels. Dinah is being honored with the UHCL BSW Field Instructor of the year award.